Your Loss Prevention Program

Many factors today can come between you, your investment and a safe living environment. An effective loss prevention program will help you, as an Apartment or Condominium owner/manager, recognize and deal with these factors and help reduce the potential for future costly losses.

Located in the back of this booklet are sample forms to help you to develop or enhance your own safety program. Utilize these forms to conduct loss control activities, document the physical condition of the premises and highlight areas needing attention so you can arrange for adjustments or repairs. You may reproduce these sample forms and checklist for your own use.

- Loss Control Review of Property Management Policies -- use this list of questions to evaluate your existing procedures and policies to help prevent avoidable accidents or hazards.
- Monthly Premises Inspection Checklist -- use this checklist on a monthly basis to identify items needing improvement. A report of unsafe conditions should be filled out for each "Needs Improvement" answer and the problem corrected as soon as possible.
- Report of Unsafe Conditions -- use this report during inspections, as explained above. This form should also be made available to employees and residents who can use it to report unsafe conditions to management.

To assure that your program is successful, it is critical that you demonstrate your expectations, commitment, involvement and follow-up to your residents and/or employees.

Farmers Loss Control Consultants are ready to assist with your safety program. Contact your Farmers Agent for details.

In providing these forms Farmers Insurance Group does not represent, warrant, guarantee or otherwise certify that use of this booklet and forms will prevent losses or assure compliance with the laws, regulations, requirements or guidelines of any local, state or federal, legislative or regulatory agency.

Management of Loss Control

You must believe in and support the loss prevention concept. By developing and endorsing your own safety policy, you show support for a program which requires active involvement of all residents and employees.

An ongoing safety program controls expenses and enhances your ability to attract new residents. It has to be imbedded into your day-to-day operations. To be effective, it must be more than a program on the shelf; an occasional property survey is not enough.

When management continuously demonstrates genuine interest in safety, residents are prone to do the same.

HAVE YOU:

1. Issued a written safety policy?
2. Allocated realistic time and money for safety items?
3. Acted promptly on safety recommendations, suggestions and complaints?

Communication

The success of your loss prevention program depends on each person being aware of the safety expectations.

Consistent two-way communication is the key.

COMMUNICATION INVOLVES:

- Input from everyone involved in developing your program.
- Feedback to determine the program's effectiveness.

If communication is encouraged and rewarded, more residents and employees will participate.

HAVE YOU:

1. Shared your safety goals with your residents and employees?
2. Communicated the actions necessary to accomplish these goals? This applies to everyone including the residents.
3. Trained in safe practices and follow-up? The success of your program depends on your continuous awareness of the value of loss reduction and how it relates to each tenant or employee.
4. Communicated the hazards involved in the job to the employees?
5. Communicated safe premises practices to avoid possible security or injury to tenants?

Inspections

Self-inspections increase your opportunities to correct unsafe activities or conditions on the property before a loss. Utilize the “Monthly Premises Inspection Checklist” to identify unsafe physical conditions inside the buildings or on the grounds.

Frequently, the inspection process has focused entirely on the physical environment, yet the majority of costly injuries and lost time results from resident or employee actions.

Accident Investigation

Resident injury and property damage result from unsafe behaviors and conditions and need to be investigated. Seldom are accidents a result of something outside your control.

INVESTIGATION PROCESS

- Obtain information from the injured employee(s) or person involved.
- Survey the conditions at the time of the accident.
- Determine the condition of the equipment, activities or property involved.
- Obtain information from witnesses when available.
- Analyze the information and determine root causes. (i.e., worn carpet, faulty handrails, damaged surface in parking lot.)
- Implement corrective measures.
- Report incident to appropriate source(s).
- It is extremely important not to place blame because it discourages cooperation.

HAVE YOU:

1. Communicated the accident investigation process is to uncover root causes?
2. Followed through on the recommendations resulting from the investigation to prevent reoccurrence?
3. Have you notified residents of safety rule changes or procedures?

Commitment is essential to an effective loss prevention program. If you need assistance, just ask.

Security Liability

As a property owner or manager you are responsible for providing a property reasonably protected from vandalism, criminal action, burglary and tenant injury.

HAVE YOU:

1. Trained your rental staff to avoid stating you property is “safe”. Or if your property is a gated community avoid stating that the tenants are protected from intruders?
 2. Instructed employees to inspect for missing or inoperable security lights, and high grown bushes which limited visibility?
 3. Advised tenants that windows and doors, especially sliding glass doors should remain locked when the tenant is not at home or at night?
 4. Encouraged tenants and employees to report any suspicious activities to the manager or rental office?
 5. Notified all tenants in writing when an incident does occur in your building or complex?

Employee Selection

PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS OF THE JOB

It is becoming increasingly important to develop a written description of the physical requirements of each job. Each employee should be selected according to the particular job requirement and the employee’s ability to perform the job.

HIRING PRACTICES

Equally as important as hiring an employee able to physical perform a job is for a property owner or manager to hire a responsible employee. Property managers should diligently check references, determine any past altercations with tenants or criminal behaviors which may put your tenants or other employees at risk. Employees who have access to tenants apartments or master keys should have more extensive background checks.

SAFETY RULES

Written rules will help new employees understand what is expected and how following procedures will help protect them from possible injury.

HAVE YOU:

1. Accurately defined the job requirements in your job descriptions?
 2. Familiarized everyone with the job requirements?
 3. Checked references of all potential employee?
 4. Obtain background checks on employees having access to master keys or tenants apartments?

Job Training

New employees need to know your loss control goals and practices right along with employee benefits and premises operations. From day one show you are committed to safety and the important part each employee has in keeping the premises safe.

Review safety rules. Training is incomplete unless it includes resident and employee safety measures. Address ways to avoid damage to playgrounds, laundry room, community rooms, pool and residents vehicles.

SUCCESSFUL JOB TRAINING INCLUDES:

- Identifying and communicating property hazards.
- Monitoring the employee's performance and compliance with established safety practices.
- Reinforcing positive behavior.

A Farmers Loss Control Consultant can suggest methods to determine property and liability exposures. Controlling possible losses through these activities will have a positive effect on your operation, your image in the community and to the general public.
